

Engage a house and pet sitter for peace of mind

With the busy season over and most of us starting to settle into the year, we often plan a few getaways to help us relax and unwind.

By engaging a house and pet sitter to care for your property and pets, you can enjoy your holiday away with the peace of mind that your pets will be happy in their own home with their own smells and toys and that the home is occupied.

Engaging a house and pet sitter also makes financial sense as you don't have to worry about pet boarding fees.

Your holiday is more fun when you know your pets are happy

It's tough to leave your pets when you are planning to go away on holiday. But knowing that they are happier in their home environment with a house sitter, makes the time away from each other a little easier. More...

Everyone needs some time to get away

Having some time to getaway to rest and relax isn't always easy, especially for those who live on rural or semi-rural properties. Engaging a house and pet sitter is a great way to ensure that your property and animals are maintained while you're away. More...

Caring for pets

Here are some great tips that we've found for to keeping a home tidy and clean home with pets.

- Create a Space: Dedicate a space for your furry friend within your home so they have their own area where they know to eat, sleep and rest.
- No Go Carpet: Carpet absorbs odours and traps pet hair, so steer clear of carpet if you can. If you're planning to purchase a rug for your hard floors, make sure it is a non-slip variety, for the times your furry friend comes running around the corner for food time. If you would like carpet then choose a low pile that is easier to clean.
- Pet Hair: If you don't want to see the pet hair, choose products with fabrics that have primary colours similar to your pet. This will help conceal any shed pet hair.
- Paint to clean: Choose a satin paint to cover your walls which will be easier to clean when your pet shakes off the water from a wet weather walk.
